A win in the game with the Colonels would put S-L in the top 25 of the Harris Interactive Poll for the first time this season. The Billikens will be one of four ULM at-large selections, joining conference foes UAB, Texas State and WKU. Each of those teams, along with ULM, will play a first round game on Friday, March 29. The winner of each game will earn the second round game, scheduled for March 30. For the Colonels, it will be the second consecutive season as they are the second seed for the Southland Conference Tournament. In last year's tournament, Nicholls State advanced to the NCAA Division I Final Four. Last Time Out: The Billikens (6-2) held off Charleston Southern, 79-76 in overtime to win their fifth straight game.
